

Graduate Program in English and American Literature

This program aims to graduate (a) EFL teachers at Japanese junior high schools and high schools and (b) professional workers in other areas where highly-advanced English skills and knowledge are required. The program accepts students with a strong desire to acquire not only advanced English skills but also the knowledge of cultures in English-speaking countries, advanced research techniques, and abilities to understand foreign cultures so that they will be able to play major roles in diverse sections of global society.
