

Graduate Program in Education

This program accepts students who understand the educational policies of Showa Women's University and will strive to acquire (a) advanced knowledge and research methods applicable to human education, (b) methods for all-around education, (c) advanced and practical teaching methods, and (d) abilities to administer and finance educational institutions. Strong candidates for admission are those who aspire to play active roles at educational or research institutions in the future and are also endowed with qualities and aptitude for active interaction with children and all people in society.