

Graduate Program in Environmental Design

This program accepts students who have finished the basic studies in environmental design, have a strong desire to learn about a broad range of the latest theories and practical skills, and to strive to prepare themselves as researchers/business administrators in the future. Candidates are required to demonstrate their strong interest in environmental design, determination to take on challenging tasks, and strong willpower and ability to take action.