

Graduate Program in Psychology

Candidates are required to have a basic knowledge of psychology and research experience.

1. The clinical psychology division accepts students who have adequate aptitude for qualifying as clinical psychologists and aspire to work as psychiatrists in the future and those who aim to be research psychologists.
2. The psychology division accepts students who aspire to play active roles in society by utilizing the skills and knowledge of psychology acquired in graduate school, and those who plan to be research psychologists.